STRAUSS PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

The Wednesday morning recitals in Carmel Playhouse are succeeding beyond the dreams of the promoters, far outdoing last season's surprising record. Everybody in town who is anybody attends, from Mayor Heron down. The lunch to be served after the program had to be abandoned. As His Honor expressed it in a brief address, "Too many people want to eat." It seems to be a habit not easily broken, and the concerts are so popular there isn't room in the patio to serve the crowd.

Lawrance Strauss, tenor, proved a rare personality, holding his audience entranced. He deserves all the more credit for achieving this, since his voice is not extraordinary, and he was obliged to put it over by sheer force of musicianship, temperament, technic and brains. Only once did he rise to the heights of the great ones who thrill us. That was in a truly masterful rendition of "The Pipes of Gordon's Men." Thomas Vincent Cator's "The Pool of Quietness to words by Grace Wallace, was vigorously encored, and the soloist was forced to repeat it.

Lawrence is an ideal recitalist, and in securing such an artist the management is setting a high standard. This singer possesses remarkable histrionic qualities. His interpretations are vital and, eloquently musical From the lyrical standpoint, Richard Strauss' "Traum Durch die Dammerung" was the most enjoyable number. In sustained, pianissima tones Lawrence Strauss seems at his best. He is exceptionally happy in character songs. The soloist's remarks prefacing the various numbers were in excellent taste, and contributed to the mood. The enthusiastic reception given Mr. Strauss proves that he will find a ready welcome in Carmel whenever he chooses to sing for us.

The sympathetic work of Elizabeth Alexander, accompanist, contributed materially to the success of the concert.

Olin Downes Will Talk Next Wednesday Morn

Olin Edwin Downes, known far and wide because of his authoritative criticisms in the New York Times as well as his writings upon music in general, which occupy an entire page of the Times each Sunday, will be the next artist to appear in the Wednesday Morning Recitals at the Carmel Playhouse. Mr. Downes is far more than just a critic. He is also a musician of great ability. He was a pupil of Keltenborn in piano, music-history and analysis, of Baermann in piano, of Norrih and Heilman in harmony, and of Marshall in harmony.

For many years before he was critic on the New York Times, he was critic on the Boston Post. He is author of "The Lure of Music," a crisp and acute summary of biography, criticism and analysis of well known compositions, adapted to illustrations by graphaphone records. He has edited "The Songs of Russia," published by Carl Fischer & Co., a collection of sixty songs, with Russian texts and translations by George Harris, Jr., and others. Downes has lectured on opera in courses at leading American universities. He wrote the program notes for "The Pipe of Desire," and also for "The Sacrifice."

In recent years Downes has become more and more renowned for his writings and criticisms, until he is today the outstanding critic in America, and his knowledge of contemporary music is second to no one's.

In Carmel Mr. Downes is going to discuss "The Music of Spain," and he will illustrate his talk by the use of some very rare records of Spanish music that he, himself, made in Spain recently. This should be particularly fascinating to the people of Carmel and the Monterey peninsula. And because of the large number of Spanish numbers of recent issue which have found unusual favor with the public—such as Ravel's "Bolero," the subject will have an additional appeal coming at this time.

Mr. Downes will be at the Carmel Playhouse on Wednesday morning, August 6, at eleven o'clock.

Beauty Unveiled

Oh no—not naughty—that is, not very. Just beautiful, tuneful and amusing. You'll get a great kick out of Metz Durham's Carmel Nights. After seeing the dress rehearsal, I say you'll make a mistake if you fail to attend the show. Florenz Ziegfeld should put Metz on his staff. He's sure some judge of pretty girls and their appendages. Plenty to make you polish your glasses, strain your eyes, and laugh and hum with the chorus. For an all around good time don't miss Carmel Nights.

Outdoors under the stars in the Forest Theater you'll see an eye-full. Nymphs and clowns —Viola Parker's dancing is a dream. This young lady, at home on any professional stage, chooses to remain on the Peninsula, and has trained those young girlies till they're all charm and smiles—and legs.

Visitors, you've heard things about Carmel. If you think us nuts, why, you're right—Metz Durham will prove it to you! Come and see the nuts in action. Residents and old-timers will enjoy the allusions to our poet mayor, to Murphy, Staniford, Al Weingand, Tilly Polak, Denny-Watrous, Leidig's, DeYoe, Fraser, Imelman, Abernethy and many others, all in good fun. The chances are you'll learn something about yourself. All delicious nonsense, the sort of thing that makes Carmel a household word throughout the land. Professionals on a holiday have drifted into the cast, and rise to unsuspected heights in their jolly roles—and many who insist they are not professionals, could be if they but "choose to run."

DR. LOWELL DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Dr. C. H. Lowell of Carmel was almost instantly killed and Mrs. Lowell was critically injured shortly before eight o'clock Wednesday night when their car overturned while travelling south near the Allan gate at Point Lobos.

The Lowells were taken to the Carmel hospital by T. F. Riley of Point Lobos and Louis Passadorio of Carmel. Dr. Lowell, however, died within a few minutes after the accident. Mrs. Lowell was said to be suffering from internal injuries.

Charles Lowell and Mrs. Esther Shield of Berkeley, son and daughter, reached Carmel early yesterday morning. At the time of writing no funeral arrangements had been made for Dr. Lowell.

Dr. Lowell graduated shortly before the Spanish-American war from the Cooper medical school, later taken over by Stanford. He served during that campaign, later entering the navy as surgeon. When he retired from the navy with the rank of lieutenant he entered private practice. Dr. Lowell came to Carmel from Hollywood six years ago to start his practice here. He was either in or about his 57th year at the time of his death.

COMING TO CARMEL

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, wife and son, are expected back at the Sidney Fish ranch just south of Carmel some time in September, according to a story in the San Francisco Bulletin.

Last March Colonel Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh spent two weeks in glider experimentation flights at the Rancho Pescadero, home of Mr. and Mrs. Fish.

At the time they left, Colonel Lindbergh said they planned to return for another visit before the end of the year.

COBBLESTONE CURBS NEW STREET PLAN

Within another two weeks Twelfth street will blossom out with a new cement gutter, new culverts and a cobblestone curb, thanks to work now being carried out by the city street department.

Workmen are improving the street between Dolores and Camino Real. With that much completed the job moves on down hill to San Antonio—and completion.

Twelfth street was badly washed in the heavy rains of last winter, and improvements have been needed. As Miss Clara N. Kellogg, street commissioner on the council, points out, a substantial saving is being effected to the people by having the city carry out the work instead of turning it over to contract.

A cobblestone curb, furthermore, pleases the Carmelite eye better than any concrete curb. The cost is only a trifle more. Miss Kellogg states that street improvement work will steadily progress, with the city tackling the worst streets first.

FIRE OUT

One fire engine and one thousand automobiles attended a grass fire that broke out on a vacant lot in the 80 acres last Tuesday afternoon. Reports indicate that there was no damage, nor were any fatalities recorded. The fire force stopped the flames before they had a chance to spread.

SAN FRANCISCO SEES CARMEL FIREMEN

Members of the California State Firemen's association are now in session in San Francisco —and Carmel is there with them.

Robert Leidig, Carmel fire chief, is present, and his family is with him. Paul Mercurio, captain, is also there. Paul Funchess, likewise a captain, is answering the roll call. Joe Machado is another Carmelite who is attending the session.

Then there is Pon Chung, treating San Franciscans to the presence of the only Chinese member of an American fire department. "Pop" Werner, an associate member of the force with Pon, rounds out the village delegation.

The convention began Wednesday and ends tomorrow.

HIGHLANDS ZONING

One week from tonight, announcements say, the Monterey county planning commission will meet with residents of Carmel Highlands to discuss the problem of zoning in that territory.

When the commission met in Salinas last Monday afternoon it practically concluded its preparation of a zoning ordinance for the whole county. In this document one section refers to the needs of Carmel Highlands and its adjoining territory.

At the meeting on the 8th, Highlands residents will have full opportunity to study this section and make any changes they desire. Once the entire document is framed in final form it will be sent to the county supervisors for adoption.

Highlands residents have taken the stand that they want their area absolutely protected against hot dog stands, signboards and the like.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Armstrong of Sacramento are occupying the Joyce cottage for a month. Mrs. Philip Hilkowitz of Denver is with her.

County Tax Rate To Be Same as Last Year

Despite an increase this year of $5,217,527 over the assessed valuation of Monterey county last year, the county tax rate will probably remain the same, it was indicated at a meeting last week of the supervisors when they looked over figures of the budget.

There had been reports that the rate would be reduced owing to the increased valuation, but to offset this there has also been an increase of $128,932 in the budget over last year.

The first figures submitted to the supervisors at this week's meeting revealed an increase greatly in excess of the $128,932, which would have meant an increased tax rate, it was indicated at the meeting, but the supervisors carefully scanned the various sums requested by heads of departments and trimmed them down to a point that while there will be no raising of taxation, neither will there be a reduction.

The supervisors have not formally accepted the budget estimates as submitted by department heads, and will not until August 4, so it is possible they may reduce the budget still further.

But it was indicated that they could not hope to reduce it enough to permit a reduction of the tax rate.

The assessed valuation of Monterey county last year was $50,115,758. This year it is $55,333,285.

The budget as accepted last year by the supervisors was $1,132,057. This year the preliminary figures total $1,260,989.

A detailed analysis of the budget as compared to the previous year is given here:

General fund, 408,701; last year, $319,484; increase, $89,217.

Salary, $118,854; last year, $120,787; decrease, $1,933.

Americanization, $5200; last year,$5,000; increase, $200.

Advertising $11,000; last year $10,000; increase, $1,000.

Elementary schools, $262,666; last year, $229,405; increase, $33,251.

High schools, $120,500; last year, $121,950; decrease $1,450.

Junior colleges, $2532; last year nothing.

Roads fund tax of 40 cents, $139,036; last year, $132,568; increase, $6468.

Highway bonds, $192,500; last year, $192,823; decrease, $323.

MILEAGE DATA TO DEL MONTE HOTEL

A scout car has just returned to Del Monte with up to the minute information on mileages to Monterey peninsula from various points in California. Thanks to the new Salinas-Monterey highway and other route improvements, in various parts of the State, several miles have been clipped off the previously accepted mileage statistics. The new and correct distances to Del Monte by motor:

FROM SAN FRANCISCO:

|---|---|
| Via Salinas | 125 miles |
| Via Hecker Pass | 118 " |
| Via Los Gatos and Santa Cruz | 123 " |

FROM LOS ANGELES: 356.9 miles

The Del Monte scout driver reports no difficulty in making the trip from Los Angeles in 9 hours. He also recommends the Salinas route as the quickest from San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bower and their two small children of Paso Robles spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Benson in their home in north Carmel.

Miss Virginia Webb and Miss Melinda Bush have returned to Carmel after a week's trip to Yosemite.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trinkler of San Jose are spending several days in their Carmel cottage.

DEATH CALLS ONE OF CARMEL'S PIONEERS

Through the recent death of Henry Warren, in Alaska, Carmel has lost one of its oldest pioneers.

Bronchial pneumonia is given as the cause of Warren's death at an age reported as 72 years. Meanwhile Haskell Warren, one of three surviving sons, has left Carmel with his mother, Mrs. Henry Warren, for Seattle. The funeral will be held in that city, it is reported.

It was approximately two months ago that the pioneer Carmelite, who came here in 1906 or 1907, left the village to visit his son Walter in Alaska. Walter is manager of a fish canning plant in that territory.

The list of surviving relatives is completed by a third son, Earle, a ship's engineer now cruising on the Pacific. It is believed that Earle is due in San Francisco bay in the near future.

Warren was always closely connected with the life of Carmel. Old residents still recall the day when the town was young and when Warren's herd of cows would graze in the woods, over land that is now crossed with lanes and dotted with cottages.

Warren is said to have built the first hardware store in Carmel—the place now occupied by Ross Bonham.

Then there is the little building occupied by Wentworth's shoe shop. In old times that building stood on Ocean avenue, according to Charles Watson, and in it Warren milked his cows.

In due time the frame building was moved to Ocean avenue, where it became a real estate office. Its restless life was next marked by a change to the corner of Ocean and San Carlos, where it became a store.

But it still had one more move in its system. That one took it about 30 feet across the street to its present location.

Warren is also credited with construction of the first lumber yard in Carmel. Fred Leidig now occupies that place with his woodyard.

For years Warren was a valued employe of the M. J. Murphy Inc. firm. He was in charge of the hardware department, and always commanded the respect and friendship of men.

Later he went into the milk distributing business, becoming owner of the Carmel Dairy. Not long ago he sold out and retired.

Warren was a member of the Carmel Masonic club, the Monterey Masonic lodge No. 217 and the Monterey County Scottish Rite.

Mrs. Warren and her son Haskell are both well known in Carmel. A young plumber, Haskell is also scoutmaster of the village troop.

BECHDOLT'S STORY IN CURRENT BLUE BOOK

A thumping story of mystery and adventure, written by Fred Bechdolt of Carmel, is carried in the current issue of "Blue Book."

It is a story of a hunt for a small fortune in gold dust, lost when a ship was wrecked on the coast below Ensenada. The action is set in San Francisco, on board a southbound ship and on the coast of Lower California.

MRS. TOM DOUGLASS BREAKS A LEG

Mrs. Tom Douglass is progressing "as well as can be expected" from a broken leg.

The injury dates back to last Friday night, when Mrs. Douglass called at the home of Mrs. Henry Warren to extend her sympathies for the recent death of Henry Warren in Alaska.

As she was leaving the place later, Mrs. Douglass caught her foot in a hole in the ground, so reports state, and broke her leg in falling. She was taken to the Carmel hospital for treatment. Latest reports say that the bone is knitting satisfactorily.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF PEGGY PALMER

At a supper party in Ottawa, Ill., last Saturday, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Alyson Palmer to Patrick Thomas Kavanaugh of San Francisco. Miss Palmer, better known on the coast as Peggy Palmer of the "Matoor Mind," has been a resident of Carmel off and on for years, living here with her aunt, Miss Agnes Palmer. She has been connected with the Pine Cone, and with the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, doing feature stuff. A month or so ago, she returned to Ottawa with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Palmer, who had been visiting here.

Patrick Kavanaugh is with the bond house of Bradford-Kimball of San Francisco, and well known in a business and social way in the bay cities. He was educated in the academy of St. Francis Xavier, in Nova Scotia, and at the University of Wisconsin, of which he is a graduate. He is twenty-seven years old, a Canadian by birth.

The young people will be married in the early fall, the ceremony to take place at the home of the Palmers in Ottawa. They will live in San Francisco.

Mayor Herbert Heron gave an interesting talk on the early days of Carmel before a large meeting of the Carmel Masonic club and their ladies one evening last week. On the program were Mrs. Arthur Kelley and Victor Bain, vocalists.

WORK HASTENED ON CARMEL-SAN SIMEON

Two important events of the Carmel-San Simeon highway announced recently are the reward of a contract for grading and surfacing the strip from San Remo, just south of the Highlands, to Rocky Creek, more than eight miles farther down the line; and the taking over by the state of the county road strip between Cambria and San Luis Obispo. The latter information came in a telegram to C. C. Hogle here, from Assemblyman Chris Jespersen.

Governor C. C. Young, in a speech made at Monterey, has promised the continuance of the two prison camps at work on the project, and also a substantial appropriation in the next state budget for additional contract work on the highway. He said:

"We recognize the Carmel-San Simeon road as one of California's most important highway projects and hope to have it ready in time for the Olympic games in 1932, when our state will be visited by thousands of people from all over the world."

MORE HELLOS THAN EVER IN CARMEL

Telephone installations in Carmel had gained 5.72 per cent on June 1 of this year over the number of installations on January 1, it is shown in figures compiled for the Pacific Telephone magazine.

Carmel had 1,311 telephones on January 1 and 1,386 on June 1, a gain of 75.

Monterey exchange, which includes Pacific Grove, had 4,695 telephones on June 1 compared with 4,693 on January 1, a slight gain.

Salinas gained 198 telephones for a percentage of 6.60, having 3,200 on June 1 compared with 3,002 on January 1.

Monterey peninsula, however, continued to lead its neighboring communities in total number of telephones—6,081.

JULIEN MOREAU SEEKS SHERIFF OFFICE IN MONTEREY COUNTY

Julien M. Moreau, traffic officer of Salinas, authorizes his candidacy for the office of sheriff of Monterey county at the forthcoming August primaries.

In announcing his entry into the race, Moreau reflects the confidence of his friends as to his qualifications to capably fill the office. He has been connected with law enforcement in Monterey county for many years. For the last nine years he has maintained an unblemished record as traffic officer, either for the county or for the city of Salinas. For three years he served as constable at Gonzales and also as a deputy under Sheriff W. J. Nesbitt. Through his many years in the realm of law enforcement in Monterey county Captain Moreau has acquired a background and knowledge of conditions that will enable him, if elected sheriff, to capably fill the office to which he aspires.

Captain Moreau spent his early childhood in Santa Cruz, moving to Monterey county in his early teens, where he has since resided. He is married and has two children. During the World War Moreau saw honorable service overseas. He is a prominent member of the American Legion and the Disabled Veterans' association.

During his preliminary campaigning Moreau has been assured that he has the support of many people throughout Monterey county and he states that he would like to see every voter personally, which of course is out of the question. He will, however, visit as many people as possible as time and oportunity permit to present his qualifications and calls upon the support of all his friends to put him in office.

MRS. YUNKER PASSES

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Hattie M. Yunker of Carmel, who died here last Saturday following a lingering illness.

Services started from the Paul mortuary in Pacific Grove. Burial followed in El Carmelo cemetery in Monterey. The Reverend Dr. White of Carmel officiated.

Mrs. Yunker came to Carmel three years ago from Boston, and had made her home here since that time. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Helen C. Meuth, her son, Dr. Fred S. McKay and two grandsons, Fred and Harrison Godwin of Carmel. Mrs. Meuth and Dr. McKay are now traveling in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Whipple of Riverside arrived in Carmel last week to spend two months in their cottage on North Monte Verde.

Meeting the Needs of Millions of People

The low-priced automobile has brought greater opportunity and added hours of recreation to millions of men and women.

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business — design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of millions of people and to provide it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

The search for better ways of doing things is never-ending. There is ceaseless, untiring effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing. The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before. Hard work usually finds the way.

Once it was thought impossible to cast gray iron by the endless chain method. All precedent was against it and every previous experiment had failed. But fair prices to the public demanded that wasteful methods be eliminated. Finally the way was found.

A better way of making axle shafts saved thirty-six million dollars in four years. A new method of cutting crankcases reduced the cost by $500,000 a year. The perfection of a new machine saved a similar amount on such a little thing as one bolt. Then electric welding was developed to make many bolts unnecessary and to increase structural strength.

Just a little while ago, an endless chain conveyor almost four miles long was installed at the Rouge plant. This conveyor has a daily capacity of 300,000 parts weighing more than 2,000,000 pounds. By substituting the tireless, unvarying machine for tasks formerly done by hand, it has made the day's work easier for thousands of workers and saved time and money in the manufacture of the car.

All of these things are done in the interest of the public — so that the benefits of reliable, economical transportation may be placed within the means of every one.

Tchekov's "The Seagull" Kuster's Next Offering

With the Jed Harris production of "Uncle Vanya," reported as the crowning success of the New York season, and with the Civic Repertory Theatre declaring, through Eva Le Gallienne, that the three great Tchekov plays have contributed "immeasurably" to the growing stability of that institution, it is most appropriate that Carmel as a community should now have its first introduction to Anton Tchekov, the greatest of Russian dramatists. Beginning Friday night, a week from today, Edward Kuster will present at Carmel Playhouse, for three nights, successively, Tchekov's "The Seagull," the play on which the fame of the Moscow Art Theatre was primarily grounded.

The Carmel production will be under the able stage direction of Morris Ankrum, to whose efforts much of the exceptional success of "The Thrip'ny Opera" was due. Ankrum himself will play the role of Constantin Gavrilitch Treplev. An excellent cast, one of the strongest assembled locally in recent years, will support him. It will include Mina Quevli, Galt Bell, Katheryn Peck, Gloria Newell, Edward Kuster, Charles McGrath, Sally Jaggar and André Johnson.

Just as with "The Thrip'ny Opera," the coming Tchekov production is looked upon by theatre lovers as of so much interest that parties are being made up in San Francisco and Berkeley to motor down and attend. Local season subscribers, however, will be given first night preference, as usual. Seats for next Friday's performance will not go on general sale until Wednesday. As before, tickets will be sold at the Playhouse kiosk opposite the post-office.

MORONI [illegible] "GREEN PASTURES"

The reading [illegible] Pulitzer prize play, "Green Pastures" last Saturday night in the Denny-Watrous Gallery was one of the finest performances in Carmel's busy season of drama. The combination of Marc Connelly's stirring tale of Old Testament events and its masterful presentation at the hands of Moroni Olsen was in all probability as intense in dramatic effect as is the actual production of the play which is enjoying great success in New York. The audience forgot the fine construction of the play, the skillful interpretation of the reader, literally entering the childlike mind of the Negro who, with terrific spiritual hunger and great humility, finds substance for a living religion in the words of the Bible.

COMMEDIA NIGHTS ARE RESUMED

Activities of the Drama Guild which were interrupted this week due to the opening performance of "Carmel Nights" will be resumed next week, Thursday night, in the Arts and Crafts hall with a commedia program. Continued enthusiasm on the part of a good number who attend each meeting of the Guild makes the Thursday evening programs a definite part of dramatic activity in the community. Members of either the play reading or commedia committees will accept suggestions from anyone interested in either phase of the Guild work. Original commedia plots may be submitted to the committee and, after approval, if the author desires, he may assume the responsibility of direction.

RUDHYAR IN RECITAL

Tuesday evening, August 12, Dane Rudhyar will give a recital in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. The general interest in the Cowell series on new music and the request for a continuation of the series has led to the arrangement for succeeding evenings when the works of other moderns will be played. The first of these will be given by Dane Rudhyar on Tuesday evening, August 12. Rudhyar will play works of Scriabine and Ruth Crawford, as well as compositions of his own. In further illustration of the vocal possibilities of his particular field of contemporary music, Rudhyar will chant songs of his own improvising, in accordance with the traditions of the far East.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Durham have returned to Carmel after a short trip to San Francisco.

PICTURE STAR AT HIGHLANDS

Alec B. Francis, star of the motion picture screen for years, is stopping at Carmel Highlands Inn.

The veteran actor is here on vacation. He arrived several days ago for a week's rest.

Francis, it will be recalled, was one of the featured players in "Evangeline," filmed on Point Lobos a year ago.

Mrs. Kissam Johnson and her daughter, Miss Katherine Johnson, have returned to their home in Carmel after a week's stay at the Big Sur.

Repeaters

Ray C. De Yoe's clients tell some interesting stories of his methods as a realtor. One man bought a lot in Ray's subdivision in La Loma, and built a house on it—or thought he had, until a survey proved he was several feet over on the adjoining piece. What a fine chance Ray had to hold him up—or at least to sell him more property! Instead, however, he made him a present of twelve feet, plenty to get his house in, and did not even charge him for recording the deed.

Another client who had purchased two houses from Ken Wood in one day found, when he told his wife about it, that he had purchased one house too many. The wife was so positive about it, the man asked Ray what it would cost him to get out of it. "Not a penny," said Ray. "We'll re-sell that house if we can—and if we can't—well—we'll buy it ourselves." It took Ken Wood two of the hardest days' work in his life to unload that property, but he did it. That's the sort of thing Ray De Yoe's firm does, but no one ever hears of it from them. It must pay—or at least it's good politics, for I know both the clients mentioned above will vote for Ray DeYoe for assemblyman as many times as they can—or at least until Kit Overstreet catches them repeating.

Oil Wash on Paper

Catherine Seideneck, the painter, is doing some unusual work in a special process she originated. For want of a more comprehensive term, she calls it "oil wash on paper." Beginning August 4, Mrs. Seideneck's paintings will be on exhibition at Mrs. Heron's Art Gallery in the Seven Arts. Besides canvasses in the new method, the exhibition includes oils and pastels of sea-scapes, landscapes and miscellaneous subjects—many of them from sketches made in Italy and Germany. The public is invited to view the pictures between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily.

Homer Croy in Carmel

Homer Croy, who is responsible for some of Will Rogers' recent talkies, has taken a house in the village and will remain until the middle of September. Since the appearance of his famed best seller "West of the Water Tower", Homer has made a remarkable record. It began back in 1922. Previous to that time, the author put in 20 years' apprenticeship. There were mortgages, debts, hospital expenses, just as with the common run of mortals who have families to support.

But before he struck pay fiction, Homer faced the world with a dash of bravado that carried him through. Attired in red vest and feather—the rest of his costume was usual—he presented himself at the office of the New York Tribune, announcing himself as the much-sought Canadian guide wanted in the Stillman divorce case. Needless to say he got an immediate audience not only with the city editor, but the managing editor and all of the staff. When the excitement subsided he coolly asked for a job—and got it!

Hardly was West of the Water Tower off the press when the watchful Adolph Zukor was after the picture rights. He offered $7000. Homer was too astonished to speak. Mis-reading his silence Zukor raised the bid to $10,000. By this time Homer was wise. He begged off to tell his wife. Learning that Zukor had just offered Gertrude Atherton $25,000 for Black Oxen, he returned and asked the same, insisting that West of the Water Tower would make as good a picture as Black Oxen. He was right, for it did. And Zukor must have been right, too, for he paid the $25,000 promptly.

MONTEREY COUNTY SHARES SCHOOL TAX

Monterey county will receive $280,376 from the state as its annual apportionment for support of elementary and high schools and junior colleges, according to a statement by Vierling Kersey, superintendent of public instruction.

The state will allot $27,390,836 for school support throughout the 58 counties of California, an increase of $809,249 over the allotment for last year.

"This sum of twenty-seven million dollars seems insignificant compared to approximately $160,000,000 which the state school system costs," Kersey declared.

"The remainder, about $130,000,000, must be made up solely from taxes on property, a burden which the state department of education is striving to lighten.

"We have already proposed several plans for allowing the state to take over a greater share of the financial load of school support. It will require a revision, or an extension, of our state tax system, but it will achieve the imperative need for a sharp reduction in county property taxes."

HEAD LETTUCE AND LITERATURE

Carmel's importance in Monterey county has been demonstrated, and the real value of real literature in the essential whole has been proved in a way understandable by all. Through the efforts of our writers, head lettuce will soon be upon the tables of the fashionable, and beside each plate of the delectable, but often unman*ageable*, salad will be a salad knife. Etiquette's dictum that all salads must be "with fork only," has been modified.

The lettuce growers of Monterey county, one of the greatest industries within its borders, have been seriously handicapped by the rule of society prohibiting the use of the knife with any and all kinds of salad. Emily Post, who makes the social laws, allowed no exceptions. Attacked by a fork, head lettuce has a way of skidding sideways, often to the detriment of an evening gown or dress suit trousers.

The eighteenth edition of Mrs. Post's popular "Etiquette" will contain an amendment permitting salad knives with head lettuce. Community Plate, manufacturers of silverware, have designed a dainty but adequate implement of attack for the succulent salad of Salinas. Lettuce growers are planning a nation-wide campaign of advertising which will place head lettuce on everyone's plate, instead of in his lap. And Carmel's literary people will now take up the problem of a scraper-spoon to extract the edible qualities of the artichoke.

ENGLAND SETS THE PACE

"The countryside belongs to all the people. If all the people do not wish it ruined by eye-sores, then it cannot be ruined by eye-sores."

So say the English people, and the laws of the British Isles back up the saying adequately. Elsewhere in this issue are excerpts from an article in last week's Saturday Evening Post by Kenneth L. Roberts named "England's War on Ugliness," a surprising revelation of the distance England's law has gone to prevent private selfishness from defacing the people's beauty of landscape.

Surprising, because all the argument in this country against ordinances forbidding signboards is based on the old English law that a "man's home is his castle." That we are miles behind Great Britain in community safeguards of a legal kind comes as a shock to us who have boasted of our liberality of thought. England says, and its highest courts have ruled, that the individual property owner may not destroy the view of others, or injure the landscape by erecting billboards, or other objectionable structures, upon his property.

Nor may any small section or district decide the matter for itself. Either the county authorities, or in urban districts of more than 10,000 people, the councils, determine the restrictive laws. Their authority is the Advertisements Regulation Act of 1925, passed by Parliament, granting powers to prevent "the exhibition of advertisements so placed as to disfigure or injuriously affect:

(a) The view of rural scenery from a highway or railway, or from any public place or water, or

(b) The amenities of any village within the district of a rural district council, or

(c) The amenities of any historic or public building or monument, or of any place frequented by the public solely or chiefly on account of its beauty or historic interest."

No hesitancy there in using the word "beauty," which causes so many of our legislators to blush, or sheepishly grin. Beauty is something to preserve and safeguard in England; you may not shut it out by boardings, you may not disfigure it even by painting signs all over your own building. Think of that! Your very own building is not yours to deface in that land of "every man's home, his castle!"

We recommend to our county board of supervisors, to the county planning commission, and to our city planners a careful reading of Robert's article in the Saturday Evening Post. It is encouraging.

YELLOW BUTTERFLIES

From beyond the blue loom of mountains;
Following a liquid silver thread
Running in a mold of purple shadows;
Fluttering high above my head,
A cloud of yellow butterflies
Swept on where the morning lies.

Twirling dream-flower petals sparkling
In a world of things as they are;
On the bewitching breath of tropic waters
Their flame-colored wings from far
Have brought the light of love whose beams
Hold the gift of endless dreams.

Never again will I remember
The world of things as they are,
I have followed the yellow butterflies
Home to their vivid star
And mine the land that no death knows,
Where spring lives on and the red rose glows.

—Annice Calland
in Will-o-The-Wisp

THE OLD THINGS

Some are for the new things;
I am for the old;
Gems, that in a thousand marts,
Men have bought and sold.

Houses time has mellowed;
Churches worn and gray;
Books in gorgeous bindings
Of a bygone day.

Friends the years have tested;
Ancient, lovely creeds;
Rooted faith and honor;
Old, heroic deeds.

Change may prove base metal,
Brass instead of gold;
Some are for the new things;
I am for the old.

—Pauline Dillingham
in The Harp

HEIMWEH

Beneath the graceful pepper tree
Beside the pleasant vine,
My heart is longing for the sea
And for a wind-blown pine.

The mocking birds in coverts high
Of things seductive sing,
But give to me the keening cry
Of gulls upon the wing.

I know when fading tones attest
The twilight from afar
That over Tamalpais' crest
There scintillates a star.

O happy southland, summer sweet,
To love you is my fate!
But more I love the tides that beat
Across the Golden Gate.

—Martha Trent Tyler

REGISTERED NOW—THEN VOTE

After a strenuous campaign in the newspapers throughout the county, a total of 15,172 names has been placed on the grand register for the primary election August 26. As usual, this is less than will be the total when registration finally closes for the general election, but it is better than expected; in fact, it is nearly 800 names more than the total registration for 1928.

In California, under the direct primary law, the summer election is more important to the people than the fall election. Practically all the candidates for the more important offices, state and local, are determined at the primaries. It is the one time that the people with a vote get the chance to express preferences. There should be no failures to cast a ballot on August 26.

In Monterey county, we will decide the very important offices of sheriff and district attorney, besides a contest for tax collector. There is but one candidate for many of the county offices, and usually it is the incumbent. In Monterey township, there is a three cornered battle for the office of justice of the peace, with Ray Baugh, the holder of the office, in the best position. For assemblyman of the 43rd District, Ray C. DeYoe of Carmel is running against Chris Jespersen of San Luis Obispo, and both are incumbents through the odd conjunction of a reapportionment of districts made by the last legislature.

The gubernatorial fight has three contenders, our present governor, C. C. Young, Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, and Buron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles. It has, too, many phases and many issues. Carmel, with a total registration of 884, and its environs with 278 votes more, can cast each a ballot for his or her peculiar and particular ism. And when it is settled, and the candidate elected, there will be no change in conditions worth mentioning.

"GUESS" HUNTERS AND THE LAW

Today our nimrods take to the hills, rifles in hand, to add venison to the meat-market diet of our people. It is the open season for deer in this district, and it is a poor hunter who has not already marked his buck for extermination. Yesterday, the wild things gazed lazily at our passing cars; today they are making in panic for the high hills.

Besides deer, there will be a number of other fatalities during the open season. Last season, twenty-seven persons were killed in hunting accidents, and eighty-eight were wounded. Most of these accidents were caused by "guess" hunters.

The "guess" hunter sees something moving in the brush, guesses it is a deer, promptly lets a bullet settle the question. Field deputies of the Fish and Game department have been instructed this year to keep a careful eye on the careless hunter, with a propensity for guessing. As there were last year 241,447 hunting licenses issued by the state, and there will be more this year than last, there is a large job ahead for the field men.

The Santa Lucia mountains in Monterey county provide one of the finest deer hunting districts in the state, and it is quite possible for Carmel sportsmen to drive out at dawn and be back with a buck for breakfast. Under the law, only two deer may be killed in the season by any licensed hunter, and he must have and use deer-tags. If that part of the tag which should be promptly tied to the dead deer's horns is not there affixed, the deputy game warden will gather in both hunter and prey.

Does, fawns and spike bucks are protected by law at all times. "If you can't see the horns, don't shoot," is a good motto for the rifleman to keep in the front of his mind. "Guess" hunters should learn its lines thoroughly.

People Talked About

"Death Valley" Scotty was in Carmel a few hours one day last week, after taking in the rodeo at Salinas. Scotty is the mysterious hermit of the southern desert, who has a fabulously rich mine hidden away somewhere—maybe. He became famous through his habit of appearing at intervals in civilized parts with great loads of gold dust and nuggets, which he would proceed to get rid of in a rapid fashion, and almost always in a spectacular manner. From where his wealth came he never divulged, and the story of a hidden mine was the most popularly accepted one. His most noted exploit, perhaps, was the hiring of a special train for himself alone for a Los Angeles-New York City trip.

Always a great talker, Scotty told a King City Rustler reporter of the immense mansion that he is having built in Death Valley, still under construction after several years of work. The place is destined to be practically a palace and Scotty claims three and one-half years more are necessary to complete it. Scotty revealed his source of money for its building, and probably for his other adventures of the past years, last year to newspaper reporters when he named a Chicago capitalist as his backer.

Other tales from Scotty's lips, as told, make good reading even if they do leave one slightly incredulous. Among other things, he said that he had to pay a cook in the valley $285 a month in order to get them to brave the heat, which registers 120 degrees in the early morning. And, even at that, he has three cooks on the roll at one time, one working, one coming and one leaving. Scotty claims that he has fed 128,000 people, visitors, sightseers and such, during his residence in the torrid valley.

The Homer Croys are here. "West of the Water Tower" made Croy a name as a writer that was known generally. He had done other novels, had written for the magazines, but he sprang into sudden fame with his water tower book.

Croy is a Missourian by birth, and was police reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for a time. He made a journey around the world taking moving pictures, and during the war was a moving picture expert for the Y.M.C.A. in France.

Mrs. Croy is also a writer of note—Mae Belle Savell Croy is her name, and she is frequently found in magazines read by women. She has a row of books to her credit.

The William Johnstones are off for Europe quite suddenly, and their studio is closed. They expect to return to Carmel, but this is a wide world, and the two artists are young and ambitious. London and Paris are both in the way of their return here.

Johnstone is a Scot, and was art-fed at the Edinborough College of Art, where they give their students solid food. He knows how to draw, which is the basis of all art. Nothing of the substantial foundations was forgotten in his education, and his sketch-book is a masterly piece of bit-work. He married a native daughter of California, who also is an artist—a sculptor.

Their journey has to do with very promising plans for Johnstone's work, and there is a probability of our hearing of him next through international reviews.

"Merton of the Movies" is being given a production by the Pasadene Community Players, with a remarkably fine amateur cast. That after a dozen years this play of Harry Leon Wilson's writing should still be fresh and sweet, speaks well for its universality. The theme, original enough at the time of the novel, has been worked hard and fast during all the years between.

"Merton of the Movies" was done here at the Theatre of the Golden Bough by Ted Kuster a long while back. With a lad from Kuster's dramatic school, Billy Shepard, playing the title role, it went well. On the professional stage, it had phenomenal runs in New York and on tour.

Lawrence Strauss, the tenor, used to make Carmel his headquarters in the days of George Sterling and the pioneers, and the village has always been a favorite vacation spot for him. It is pleasing that Carmel should be one of the last places to hear him before he goes to the concert stages of the east.

In the list of committees for the Monterey county fair, promised next October, are a number of Carmelites. Charles King Van Riper is chairman of the entertainment committee; Jo Mora is on the art committee; Mayor Herbert Heron is a member of the reception committee; and Ed Hatton will be one of the dairy cattle committee. The trophy committee, which is made up of the chairmen of all the other committees, is headed by Charlie Van Riper.

Commander R. K. Turner, brother of John Kenneth Turner of Carmel, is one of nine naval aviators who will ferry to the Pacific Coast the newest and latest types of observation and scouting planes in the navy's Bureau of Aeronautics.

These planes, 03U-1, are nine of a contract of thirty, nearing completion at the Chance Vought Aircraft factory at Hartford, Conn., which have been allocated to the Aircraft Squadrons, Battle Fleet. Delivery will be made at San Diego, California.

The planes will be flown west in three groups. The first group left Hartford July 26th, piloted by Commander R. K. Turner, Lt. Comdr. G. D. Price, and Lieutenant S. C. Ring. The second group will depart from Hartford about August 2nd and will be piloted by Lt. Comdr. H. R. Bogusch, Lt. Comdr. O. B. Hardison, Lt. Comdr. J. E. Ostrander and Lt. Comdr. A C. Miles. The third group will take off about August 9th and be piloted by Lt. Comdr. J. M. Shoemaker and Lt. M. T. Seligman.

Four Aviation Machinists Mates will accompany the flight: two being ordered from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, and two from the Naval Air Station at Hampton Roads, Va.

Commander Turner is Head of the Plans Division of the Bureau of Aeronautics; Lt. Comdr. Price of the General Information Section; Lt. Rinf, the Statistical Section; Lt. Comdr. Bogusch, the Maintenance Division; Lt. Comdr. Hardison, the Personnel Section; Lt. Comdr. Ostrander, the Armament Section; Lt. Comdr. Miles, the Airplane Design Section; Lt. Comdr. Shoemaker, the Engine Section; and Lt. Seligman is assigned to the Plans Division.

In addition to their duties in connection with this expeditious and economical method of delivery of aircraft, Lt. Comdrs. Miles and Ostrander will visit the plants of the Douglas Aircraft Company of Santa Monica, Calif., and the Boeing Aircraft Company of Seattle, Washington, for the inspection of aircraft under construction for the Bureau of Aeronautics at those plants.

Civil War

Carmel again shows the way. The present bitter series being played by the P. G. & E. on the Abalone League Grounds wound up its third game with a win for the local boys. Games are now two to one in a five-game series.

Merb's Monterey Murderers were overwhelmed by Owatta Knight's Carmel Crushers. Clever team work, perfectly timed plays, outright genius in the pinches won for Carmel, although at times the spectators rioted to such an extent that the teams had to join in for self protection.

Twilight ball such as this is tough on the consumers of gas and electricity because these boys will stop at nothing to score a triumph. Rumor in the grandstand said that the recent installation of gas mains in Carmel was done solely to get the best ball players on the coast to work the Carmel division for these games. If your gas flickers or your electricity has to be trimed twice a day, it is simply because the lads who cook it up and serve it are ball players and not sordid public utility workers.

We tried to get the names of the players, but Bill Crabbe, the big bawshaw of the outfit, was so excited that he could hardly remember his own name, to say nothing of the heroes out there on the turf. But this much was certain: A. Knight and G. Dewey Sund of Carmel were there. And from over the Hill, to wit: Merbs, Sheppard and Farmer, along with Bill, the old marster on the mound, hurling them in with machine-like accuracy.

Don't miss the next game. It will be three days over by the time you read this, but don't miss it. The excitement will be in tents. So will the families of the players if this struggle keeps up, and the local Red Cross has been notified to establish a chapter in Pon Chung's hot dog office.

Dog Bones

A quaint custom among the Carmel initiates is that of carrying a paper bag to restaurants and filling it with bones after the evening meal. In fact, it is an accepted habit to ask people at the nearby tables to pass the bones to you so that Rover may gnaw them on the Persian rug later in the evening.

It started when dogs were ruled out of public places of nourishment. If the dog will not go to the bones, then the bones will come to the dog. But there are limits to all things, and this delicate line was mangled the other evening at Whitney's by a well-known young matron who should have known better.

We ordered a T-bone medium. She was at the table on our left, and at once raised her paper bag and waved it at us, this be the usual sign of taking option on a non dog diner's steak. With the steak came the knife and fork but no condiments. We rapped the knife against the water glass and said we wanted A-1 Sauce, made from that famous East Indian Colonel's formula. We got it. Just as we were about to soak the steak in it, a strangled cry came from the next table.

"Stop!" cried the young matron. "Our doggie simply can't stand A-1 Sauce. Just salt, and not too much pepper."

And she watched me all through the meal. I ask you—can't something be done about this?

Carmel Nights

Don't miss this show, in its Thursday, Friday and Saturday run. Director Durham has dug up a lot of snappy local material and matched it with a fine cast. Music, plot, pretty girls—what more, pray?

Yes, and the theatre nowadays is heated by braziers. No more mummified, rug-wrapped customers. In the old days the audience used to applaud wildly to get its hands warm. But at Carmel Nights it will applaud because it can't help it. We know. We're at all rehearsals just to rest our eyes after the day's toil. Atta baby!

This station will return to the air next week at this hour, and in the meantime hold your breath for the Special Program it will bring you. Goodbye, dear friends of Staticland.

FINE BASS FISHING AROUND CARMEL

Bass fishermen are still having good luck in the Monterey Bay section, according to latest reports from William F. Kaliher, deputy for the Division of Fish and Game.

Three 12-pound stripers were caught the other morning at Marina Beach while he was on his tour of duty, and numerous cod and surf fish are being taken on the beaches around Carmel and Point Lobos, he said. Indications are that the fishing will be good for some time.

Kaliher said that he talked to many anglers who had deserted the mountain streams to get in on the sport of sea fishing—the change offering plenty of variety.

Through Some Oversight Carmel Misses A Treat

By Perry Newberry

Up to the eleventh hour, I had hoped to be asked to sing in Metz Durham's "Carmel Nights." I realize that my run-down physical condition may be responsible for this oversight, but I would have sacrificed a lot to give Carmel the treat. Now, unless the Wednesday Morning Recitals extend their season for one more Wednesday, the village will probably have to worry along without hearing me this year.

My voice is a ringing tenor. I had thought it was a basso until at rehearsal of an oratorio one time, when Tom Cator was directing, he decided I was a tenor, and took me out of the basses. He didn't put me with the tenors, because he had enough tenors anyway. He merely asked me not to sing.

I am best at after-dinner singing, when the dinner has been entirely satisfactory in a liquescent way. Many Carmelites who have attended pig-dinners in the Eighty Acres have heard me sing, "She May Have Seen Better Days." This is my favorite song, though I have an extensive repertoire of vintage of 1880 and thereabouts. Also I sing fifteen songs learned when I was being educated for a Y-Secretary in the World War, five home songs, five war songs, and five religious songs.

I never used these in France, but gave the boys at the front a simple chanson, as they say in France, which I learned at my mother's knee. It ran:

"Papa loves mamma
And mamma loves me,
We are as happy as happy
can be;
Living together—one, two,
three—
Papa and mamma and me."

Many a time, as I sang this from the stage of the canteen, I have seen war-hardened faces break into tears. It was good in those fierce days of death and cooties to listen to the sweet words and music in my husky tenor—or bass.

I began singing early in life, for ours was a musical family. My mother played the piano nicely, and sang the ballads of her day in an interesting soprano; my father played the flute and sang bass—not both at the same time, of course. Both my brothers, and my one sister were performers upon some instrument, and when we gathered of an evening in the front parlor around the Steinway square piano, with a fine fire burning in the Jewel No. 27 hard-coal stove, it was almost like an orchestra. I played either a drum, or a hair-comb with a bit of newspaper folded around it.

But when we put aside our instruments and sang the good old songs, I was better. Until I was twelve or thirteen, I had a lusty soprano, and no inhibitions. It was at school, during the morning half-hour of singing, that I stopped being a soprano. I was going strong in the ensemble choral, when I suddenly found that I had the song all to myself. The other students had stopped to hear me. And they looked, as though with one pair of eyes, at me as I carolled. I was doing soprano, alto, tenor and bass at the same time.

After my voice had settled down somewhat, I resumed singing, but never had the same confidence in my abilities as before. I would hum the words, and not be too particular about the air. Those who heard me in "The Mikado" at the Forest Theater a few years ago, may recall that I had the words very fairly, even though the orchestra and myself were not entirely at one as to the music. I always blamed the orchestra, which was fair enough, for they blamed me.

But I have not learned yet the real reason that I was not asked to sing in "Carmel Nights." Metz Durham, I am sure, never heard me sing. Fenton Foster has, and always speaks of that occasion with respect. I don't like to think it is petty jealousy. Perhaps they merely forgot, me not being around at the time. Anyhow, it is Carmel's loss.

TAX RATE TO BE SET BY COUNCIL ACTION

On August 4 the city council will receive the new assessment rolls of Carmel.

On the second Monday in August the council will begin sitting as a board of equalization. As soon as that task is completed and the last of whatever protests against assessments are disposed of, the council will draw up its 1931 budget and set the tax rate.

Taxes are payable on the third Monday in October and become delinquent after the last Monday in December.

Meanwhile Miss Saidee Van Brower is bringing to a close her long task of preparing the assessment rolls. She began March 3.

The 1929 roll for assessment in 1930 totalled $3,221,855. Taxes collected thereon amounted to $32,218.55. The real estate assessed valuation on the 1929 rolls was $1,658,390. Improvements totalled $1,398,005 and personal property $217,235. Exemptions amounted to $51,775.

It is predicted that there will be something of an increase in the new assessment rolls as they are presented to the council—although not a great increase. Reports indicate that there will be a general raise of 10 to 15 per cent on assessed valuations in the business section. In certain parts of the residential area there will be a slight decrease.

It is also believed that there will be a gain in improvements. The past year has seen the construction of several fine buildings.

Work on the new assessment rolls began after the assessment revision committee appointed by the council last spring filed its report. The committee's report, which was accepted by the council but not acted upon, recommended considerable increases in assessed valuations in the business area, offset by reductions in the residential zone. The final figure reached by the committee represented only a small increase in the recommended total.

EXCERPTS FROM ENGLAND'S WAR ON UGLINESS

By Kenneth L. Roberts in Saturday Evening Post

The chief weapons of the enlightened Englishmen who are struggling to put an end to what Mr. Greenwood called the defiling of the countryside, are various private organizations and a few laws. Most powerful of the organizations is the Council for the Preservation of Rural England. This organization is powerful because it is a union, effected in 1926, of all the different societies which have been working, for varying lengths of time and with varying degrees of success, to put an end to different phases of the ugliness which has been spreading through the fields, villages and towns of England. It is made up of a number of constituent bodies—the Royal Institute of British Architects, for example, the Scapa Society, the Town-Planning Institute, the Royal Automobile Club, the National Federation of Women's Institutes, the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings, the Royal Society of Arts, the Institute of Builders, the Metropolitan Public Gardens Association, the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and so on. With it are affiliated a large number of local societies, such as the Ardingly Countryside Protection League, the Cambridge Preservation Society, the Conservators of Ashdown Forest, the Design and Industries Association, the Federation of Rambling Clubs, the Oxford Preservation Trust, the Royal Victorian Association of Architects, the Society for Safeguarding the Natural Beauty of the Lake District, the Surrey Anti-Litter League and scores of others.

Thus the Council for the Preservation of Rural England, having the full strength of many influential societies and names behind it, is able to enlist more support in Parliament, with high government officials and in the newspapers than would be possible if the societies were not united. When the Council for the Preservation of Rural England sends—as it recently did—a memorandum to the Prime Minister of England suggesting the proper method of road design, the most advisable treatment of overhead electric-power lines, the advisability of transforming dumps into playing fields, the need of establishing national parks and the need of wider use rural areas, the Prime Minister gives the matter immediate and careful attention, and is very likely to act favorably on the council's suggestions.

Under the new Advertisements Regulation Act of 1925, a bill-posting company must be either excessively dense or unusually desperate to attempt any resistance when it finds itself afoul of a law made by any local authority under the act. The act of 1925, which is the last legal word in England in the fight against scenery defacement, says:

The powers of a local authority shall include powers to make by-laws for regulating, restricting or preventing within their district or any part thereof the exhibition of advertisements so as to disfigure or injuriously affect:

(a) The view of rural scenery from a highway or railway, or from any public place or water; or

(b) The amenities on any village within the district of a rural district council; or

(c) The amenities of any historic or public building or monument, or of any place frequented by the public solely or chiefly on account of its beauty or historic interest.

The act of 1925 further specifies that the evpression "advertisements" includes any structure erected or intended only for the display of advertisements, and that "this section shall not apply to the exhibition of advertisements on or upon any railway station, yard, platform or railway approach belonging to a railway company, or, except within the district of a rural district council, upon any dock, quay, pier, landing stage, wharf, lock or toll station belonging to any harbor, dock or canal undertaking."

It should be explained at this juncture that there are two sorts of local authorities in England that have the power of making by-laws which regulate advertisements. These are the authorities of the counties, or county councils, which correspond roughly with the legislatures of the different states of the United States; and the authorities—the urban district councils—of urban districts whose population is greater than 10,000.

It is comparatively easy for a county council, under the new law, to rid itself of billboards and eyesores, for it has been definitely and finally decided, in England, that the words "rural scenery" mean exactly what they say. They cannot be construed to mean spots that are particularly beautiful, but must be taken to mean all scenery in the country—all fields, hedgerows, woods, streams, hills, downs, moors, meadows, cornfields, banks, braes, burns, leas, coppices, coverts, spinneys and any other portion of English scenery, no matter how familiar or how peculiar their names may be.

Once a county passes a by-law which says that no person shall erect any advertisement so as to disfigure or injuriously affect the view of rural scenery from a highway or railway, then any further construction of billboards in the rural sections of that county is as dead as a kippered herring, and all signboards that were standing when the law was passed can be rudely taken down at the expiration of five years.

The outcry in England against unsightly, garish, messy gasoline filling stations has been nearly as violent as the outcry against uncontrolled outdoor advertising, and as a result, in 1928, Parliament passed the Petroleum—Consolidation—Act, giving power to county and borough councils to make by-laws "to regulate the appearance of petroleum filling stations and to prohibit their establishment in certain situations."

"The legislature," declares Mr. Humphrey Baker, acting secretary of the Scapa Society, "has definitely recognized that it is a matter of national importance to prevent our country from being disfigured by petrol filling stations in the wrong place, or of a ramshackle, untidy or unsightly appearance anywhere, and has intrusted local authorities with the duty and the privilege of protecting their own neighborhoods from these things."

ABERNETHY WINS BANKING HONORS

Announcement was made recently by the Monterey County Trust and Savings Bank of the appointment of J. E. Abernethy, manager of the Carmel unit, as a vice president of the institution.

Abernethy began his career with the Monterey County Trust and Savings Bank in the King City branch 16 years ago. His talents, reliability and strict attention to business gained him immediate recognition, and it was only a few months ago—on April 29, to be exact—that he was chosen as manager of the Carmel branch when the institution opened its new banking house in this city.

The new vice president of the entire system of the Monterey County Trust and Savings Bank has a long record of experience. Previous to engaging in banking he was agent for the Southern Pacific in King City. He also was president of the Rotary Club there and was active in the civic and social life of the community.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Love" will be the subject of the Lesson-SermonSunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation; There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling. For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways" (Ps. 91:9-11).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Angels are pure thoughts from God, winged with Truth and Love, no matter what their individualism may be. Angels are God's representatives. These upward-soaring beings never lead towards self, sin, or materiality, but guide to the divine Principle of all good, whither every real individuality, image, or likeness of God, gathers. By giving earnest heed to these spiritual guides they tarry with us, and we entertain 'angels unawares'" (pp. 298, 299).
